CAT WAS CAUGHT IN PIGEON LOFT'

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev said today he knew about U-2 intelligence flights when he met President Eisenhower at Camp David last

Asked at a press conference, why he did not mention this at the time, Khrushchev replied:
"When we were talking in Camp David with President Eisenhower I almost opened my mouth to make that statement.

"I was on the point of making it because the atmosphere was most convivial with Eisenhower telling me to call him my friend.

"And then I thought why not raise the matter with this friend of mine. Then I became apprehensive and I thought there was something fishy and I did not raise the matter.

"Then we caught them and I was right. When we caught the cat in the pigeons' loft we hit it on the tail because that was the only way it could be taught some sense."

Very Welcome Visitor

IN NO TIME AT ALL ON THIS, his first visit to Victoria, Governor-General Vanier had won allhearts. With his gracious wife he appeared all that could be desired as a representative of the Queen, adding the touch of human warmth to formal dignity that is so well known a characteristic of the Royal

It was inevitable that Victorians should compare the visitor with former Governor-General Vincent Massey. It was equally inevitable that they should find him a most worthy successor to the first Canadian to hold this high office.

Most, of those who saw Governor-General Vanier in his various appearances about the city could recall some facts of his distinguished career as a soldier and a diplomat. He earned a gallant record on the field of battle, suffering cruel wounds which his spirit has sur-mounted, and won fresh laurels as a Canadian representative abroad. The many latter offices included his service as Canadian Minister to France on the outbreak of the Second World War and Ambassador to France when the Paris Government was restored in 1944.

In somewhat the tradition of the field marshal's baton in every private's haversack, the present Governor-General may look back on his service four decades ago as aide decamp to the Queen's Canadian representative of that time.

As he left the city today, Victorians could cheer him as an accom-plished diplomat, an outstanding Canadian and a very popular figure, and look to the day when we may welcome him again for a much longer stay.

The Public Must Be Told

MOST OF THE EXISTING it will fall inevitably into the hands railways of North America are in financial difficulty, the CPR says it needs larger revenues, the CNR is running huge deficits, but Mr. Bennett believes that a new railway in northern British Columbia is an attractive business proposition.

Perhaps it is. Perhaps it will pay handsomely and open up rich northern territories for the benefit of the nation.

But the public has no means of judging these prospects. It has been given virtually no information, except the general route of the rail-way and the names of five com-panies that intend to finance the

Why, it may be asked, should the public be given more information when the promoters intend to pay the cost out of their own, or their clients' purses? Is this not a private business enterprise for which the taxpayers accept no responsibility?

It cannot be entirely a private nterprise for two reasons.

Undoubtedly, and quite reasonably, the promoters will require some concessions from the people of British Columbia who own the land to be traversed by the railway. They may also ask for federal subsidies, as Mr. Bennett asked for them with partial success when he extended the Pacific Great Eastern. Railway. If any land, money or other concessions are expected from the public domain the new railway is very much the public's business.

Secondly, if the railway does not succeed, if it goes broke, as the privately-owned PGE, the Grand runk Pacific, the Canadian Northern and various other railways in Canada went broke in times past, there is surprising and fascinating. It is called "The Christian and Elec-tions" and it is the work of two Roman Catholic priests, Abbes Ger-ard Dion and Louis O'Neill.

They collaborated two years ago in a remarkable pamphlet attacking the political immorality of the Union Nationale, then led by the late Pre-mier Maurice Duplessis. Now their indictment is reissued in a volume which has become a campaign docu-ment of importance in the current provincial election.

The two priests hold that it is sinful for a Christian to buy or sell votes, or condone dishonesty in public affairs. Hence personal morality among Roman Catholics, they say, involves political morality, and they believe that political morality in of the public, just as the others did. Any railway built by private funds, with communities and industries dependent on it, can never be left to rust, unused, in the wilderness. The state must rescue it, as the state has rescued so many Canadian railways, and pay the neces-sary costs out of the public

Besides, the new railway seems to be part of the whole Wenner-Gren promotion in the north (though its route lies west of that originally selected) and apparently is associated with the development of Peace River power. If so, it is certainly public business of the most important kind since the Peace River power scheme is a primary issue of public policy.

For these reasons the public has the right to know all about the new railway but up to now Mr. Bennett has contented himself with a general and typically optimistic an-

Of course he is not bound to make any premature announcement and must have time to complete what must be a very large financial transaction. Assuredly, however, he has no right to make any final commitment on behalf of the public until he has submitted the deal to the Legislature which alone is entitled to make gifts, subsidies and concessions to any promoter.

If, as seems probable, Mr. Bennett plans an election for the nett plans an election for the autumn and will ask for a general mandate to carry through the railway scheme, then he is bound in common honesty to tell the people exactly what they are voting on. If he wants a mandate to build the railway, let him tell the voters what it will cost them and what they will got in return gets in return.

And that means he's ready to announce a German settlement, which, of course, means he feels he's strong enough to enforce one, which must be based on the knowledge of some new weapon, and that naturally would follow from the properties of the strong through the strong to the strong through the strong thro some important break-through in scientific research.

Bright Deduction

So the pundit announces that Russia must have discovered some new form of atomic rocket fuel and the West had better get busy.

But that sort of thing is straightforward and obvious. Any pundit worthy the name could work out a theory like

Troubles

THIS seems to be the correct parliamentary subject to choose from the period during which the wedding of Princess Margaret and Mr. Antony Armstrong-Jones took place. On the night before the wedding, the Commons brought their debate to a hurried close because the Hansard staff reported that they were having difficulty in getting their copy through to the printers.

The reason was clear enough as soon The reason was clear enough as soon as politicians emerged from the Palace of Westminster: Whitehall and Parilangent Square were filled with an endless chain of cars bringing people to see the wedding decorations. On the afternoon of the wedding day, when Princess Margaret and her husband were trying to drive through the City of London to board the royal yacht, the press of sight-seers round the cars was at times frightening. frightening.

The circumstances were, of course, quite exceptional, but it had been prudent of the Commons to decide that they would not meet on the Royal wedding day.

Mush and Gush

Mr. Emrys Hughes, the Labor member for South Ayrshire, who, while wishing the bride and the bridegroom well, condemned the "lush, mush, and gush" that was deluging the press, protested against the abandonment of the Friday sitting. He reminded the House that this would delay consideration of a private member's Traffic Control (Temporary Provisions) Bill, among other items of

The House of Lords spent a whole day's debate on road traffic without producing anything like a common opinion about what should be done. Few speakers attempted to hold the House to the basic problem: how to secure a proper relation between the number of cars and the number of roads.

Beyond Discussion

Should the output of new cars be imited, or the road program greatly expanded, or both? Generally speaking, politicians seem to regard the continual increase in the number of cars as an act of God—beyond discussion.

But Lord Moynihan, a Liberal peer, said there would be no answer to road accidents while people were encouraged to buy cars on very reasonable hire-purchase terms and roads were not produced on which the increasing traffic could run easily.

could run easily.

The opinions of the peers differed widely. Lord Elton, who initiated the debate, spoke of the value to society of the sacredness of life and limb. The Bishop of Carlisle stated that the public did not realize the gravity of the accident figures. But Lord Montagu of Beaulieu suggested that there had been a "complete hysteria" in recent months about road arcidents and boasted that Britani's casualty figures "are the envy of councasualty figures" are the envy of coun-I was shocked by the banner head-line that appeared in your May 13 issue, "Dentist's Chair to Dentist's Cha Others dis-puted this and argued in any case (Lord Reid and the Bishop of Carlisle among them) that the drunkenness factor could not properly be isolated until there were an objective scientific test available, in-dependent of mere opinion. Rank bad driving and "the driver who did not pay attention" were mantioned as more for attention" were mentioned as more fre-quent causes of accidents.

And the remedies? Lord Elton proposed more severe penalties, not merely stiffer fines but, automatic disqual/fication for dangerous driving which, said Lord Elton, had proved over and over again to be a deterrent and a life-saver.

Lord Blackford, chairman of a group of the saver.

Lord Blackford, chairman of a group of insurance companies, argued that "momentary carelessness" was a potent cause of accidents and that the motorist might be more alert if he himself, rather than an insurance company, had to hear more of the cost of accidents—the first £25, say, of the damage done to his own car, and the first £50 of damage to a third party. Lord Blackford added that the insurance companies would not themselves make such a change unless it were imposed on them by legislation. LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN Olivier Couldn't Be Heard

LONDON-Sir Laurence Olivier has run into trouble with his latest film.

It's The Entertainer, screen version of angry John Osborne's second play about a seedy son and dance man, in which Olivier scored a tremendous hit (twice) on the stage here. The film was all lined up for a lavish premiere but at the last minute it. was withdrawn and another picture substituted.

All The Entertainer's release dates throughout Reyburn celled and the company distributing it say that now they "have no definite plans to show the film."

It is no fault of Olivier's. The trouble is purely technical.

Tony Richardson, the director who also transferred Osborne's Look Back in Anger to the screen, is a great one for realistic

He doesn't believe in what is known in the film business as "post-synching," pronounced "post-sinking" but nothing to do with putting posts into the ground.

For the sake of those of you who may not be familiar with the system followed by practically all movie-makers these days, post-synchronization entails actors dubbing in their lines in a studio for sequences taken

They feel it is much more satisfacto that way because while filming outside all sorts of unwanted sounds, like a plane passing over or a car backfiring, may butt in on the sound track.

But director Richardson feels there's a phony aspect about the pure quality of actors' voices studio-recorded for outdoor scenes. So, with much of the action of The Entertainer taking place at the seaside resort of Morecambe, he did the whole lot, sound and vision, on the spot.

Result: It's impossible to understand what the actors are talking about. As the boss of the distributing firm put it: "The seagulls sounded fine but I wished they'd quit squawking just for a minute so I could hear what Olivier was saying."

MIXED U.S. REACTION

Not the End

WASHINGTON (AP)-A call to put American defences on the alert underlined the sober reaction in this capital today to the collapse of the summit conference.

Senator Richard B. Russell SPY PLANE of Georgia, chairman of the Senate armed services committee, cautioned that Premier Khrushchev's "erratic actions might precipitate the horror of nuclear war."

"That does not mean that a plane cannot be diverted in flight and if that is what happened in this case, we have protested to the United States government that this is not right and must not happen again,"

But he told reporters he was "not frightened" at the Soviet threat of "retalliatory measures" if the territories of Pakistan, Turkey and Norway are used by American spiplanes.

"These are the harsh things of life which must be faced and if this thing comes we shall not be alone or helpless."

HOT WAR POSSIBLE

Russell, saying the cold war has been intensified and a hot war is possible, added in a statement:

He'll Crack The Whip On Zoning

Saanich planning committee Tuesday took steps to enforce zoning regulations in the municipality.

It approved an amendment to the zoning bylaw giving the chief inspector of services the power to lay charges against any person found breaking zoning regulations.

The amendment was proposed by town planner Tony Parr and supported by Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe.

"We have a zoning bylaw but we need someone to enforce it," said Mr. Parr.

IGNORED

Some people, he explained, often ignore zoning regula-tions and go ahead with a project without informing the nunicipality.

Draft copies of a sign bylaw prepared by Mr. Parr were also presented to the committee for study and considera-

Coun Leslie Passmore said he was in favor of the bylaw. "The stricter it is, the bet-ter," he said.

Countless molecules and atoms of gas crash in collisions. Electrons are shorn off and other particles stripped away. This upsets the electrical balance of an atom. We call these unbalanced particles ions—and the ionosphere contains a great many ions and ionized atoms. This state of affairs produces a blanket of electric potential.

What They Really Mean . . .

"It's not the manager's fault," said the general manager of the team in the losing streak.

What he really meant: "He's not to blame, but if he loses two more, he's gone. Every general manager I ever knew who protected a manager wound up out of work. I know he's in the second division with a second-division team. But when I bounce him, the fans will figure he loused it up. The miser who owns the club isn't going to spend any money for players. The cheapest thing I can do is fire the manager, I can't get in trouble with my boss as long as I don't cost

* * * "I couldn't get them up for it," said the losing football

What he really meant: "These guys are strictly union men. The athletic director told me the heat's on this sea-son. The conference is investigating us. So I can't give them a bonus every time I win. We won last Saturday, and all I could do was give them a handshake and a slap on the back. But these college boys don't want the rah-rah. It's strictly cash with them."

"My horse sulked," said the trainer. What he really meant: "The horse should of never got out of the barn. He was so sick, I didn't think he'd ever make the gate. But the owner bet two Gs on him for a big price in the winter book. He told me to run the poor thing long as he was alive."

"I was just wild," said the pitcher who put the batter in the hospital by hitting him in the head.

What he really meant: "We got a chance to win the pennant if that bum ain't playing. I done the club more good than winning 20 games. The writers asked me if I was trying to brush him back. What's the use of just brushing him back? That don't stop him swinging. I hit him with my first pitch. My control was never better."

* * *

"These scientific boxers," explained the television announcer describing the dull fight.

What he really meant: "You expect me to tell the truth like a dumb boxing writer? All I got to do is knock the racket, and they'll get another boy. The pugs were so afraid of one and another, they didn't come near one and another for ten rounds. Let me tell the truth, and I'll be living in a furnished room. If a man isn't a liar in my business, he should get another job.'

That man's out because I said it," said the umpire. What he really meant: "My corns are killing me. It's e to a hundred in the shade, but I'm in the sun. My old close to a hundred in the shade, but I'm in the sun. My old lady's never home when I call her after a slight game. You got these things in your head, you got to blow plays. I don't know if the creep was out or safe. I was out of position and didn't see the play. But why should I give the runner a break? He's getting $50,000 a year. Pm getting $10,000. The shortstop's getting around $9,000. Maybe, if they didn't pay a stiff like that $50,000, the league could afford to give

"My putting was way off," said the golfer who finished second in the tournament.

What he really meant: "You ever try to hold a golf club still when you're shaking with a hangover?

"The bum held all night," said the winning fighter What he really-meant: "If he don't hold, I butt his head off. I busted him open with a butt in the first round and after that he was so busy protecting himself, he didn't get a chance to punch."

"Baseball should be protected," said the politician. What he really meant: "If I'm running in England, I would boost cricket. In Italy, I'd make soccer an issue. How can you get into trouble by praising the national

"I pushed an outside pitch to right," said the rightpitch was too quick for me. But a lucky hit counts in the average as a legitimate one."

VANCOUVER—Yachtsmen aren't at all impressed by the turn of speed University of B.C. scullers are showing at practice. In fact, they're downright annoyed.

Complaints sent in to police during the weekend said the UBC team—tuning up for a claim to Olympic competition—are exceeding the five-mile-an-hour limit in Coal Harbor and the wash is damaging moored boats.

The yachtsmen pointed out it wasn't the sculls that bothered them during the crew's occasional 15-mile-anhour bursts. It was the waves from the accompanying coach's cruiser.

Commented Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose: "We're caught in the middle. If we enforce the law, we're preventing the team from practising."

The crews say Coal Harbor is the only practice spot

Copies of the complaints have been forwarded to the Harbor Board and the city's prosecutor's office.

The Crescent is a very fine ship, A very fine ship is she. But she isn't the same as the Fraser, As any fool can see.

If the above jingle doesn't make sense, you didn't read the paper very carefully sesterday. Because in yesterday's paper there was an excellent acrial photograph of navy ships steaming bravely down

Juan de Fuca Strait.

Juan de Fuca Strait.

The reason they were steaming bravely down Juan de Fuca Strait was, they were out to meet the governorgeneral and give him the honor his exalted office merits.

But the whole effect of this excellent picture and the excellent manneuvre being carried out by the excellent ships was spoiled by the stupid oaf who wrote the caption which appeared with the picture.

Because in the caption, the ship carrying the governorgeneral was referred to twice as HMCS Fraser and THREE TIMES as HMCS Crescent.

Now everybody—even an illiterate caption writer—

Now everybody—even an illiterate caption writer—must know the governor-general came from Vancouver to Victoria in HMCS Fraser, not HMCS Crescent.

Furthermore, everybody, including a caption writer with the lowest IQ this side of Lower Slobbovia, should know HMCS Fraser and HMCS Crescent bear little or no resemblance to each other.

And the dumbest of caption writers should remember that HMCS Crescent left this count long long are and is that HMCS Crescent left this coast long, long ago, and is now based at Halifan.

Also, no caption writer should try to seize on the feeble excuse that HMCS Crescent once DID transport a governor-general from Vancouver to Victoria.

An excuse as feeble as that just isn't good enough, and if I chance to meet this stupid out of a caption writer, I will tell him so, right to his face.

In fact, I think I'll get a mirror and do it now.

NO SIGN OF BABY PHEASANT AFTER 23 DAYS' INCUBATION

Has Carolyn A Hard-Boiled Egg?

Has the experiment of a young schoolgirl to hatch a pheasant's egg by artificial means failed?

"I'm beginning to wonder," said Carolyn Brown, 3405 Beach Drive, who is trying to hatch a lone pheasant egg ina small two-egg incubator.

She reported today there is no sign of a chick after 23 days of incubation, the average time it takes for an egg

"I'm beginning to be suspicious," she said. "I may have a hard-boiled egg." But Carolyn won't admit defeat yet. She's still hope ful she will get a baby pheasant,

She said some people have told her that pheasants' eggs sometimes take 25 days to hatch. This gives her two

Carolyn's egg has aroused the interest of hundreds of school children since she started her experiment in April.

She first "nursed" the egg in a foll-lined box heated by Christmas tree lights. Then she obtained from Seattle a small two-egg chicken incubator—the type used by chil-dren for hatching Easter eggs.

Carolyn inherited the egg from Jack Housez, 4034

Portable Meals Are Big Boon To Keen Boat-Minded Families

Sailors have an appetite in every port. That goes for their wives, sweethearts, children and cousins, also.

This summer there will be many small boats in surrounding waters. That means many meals afloat—in a canoe, sailing, motorboating or on a highpowered vacht.

Basically, there are two different ways to approach feed-ing amateur sailors: Either carry a prepared meal from home or cook it away from cove. Which method you select depends on the kind of boat you have, whether or not you plan to cast anchor and on Practical sailors use paper services (cups, plates and napkins) on boating trips whether they're cooking out or carry. ing the food cooked. They are lightweight, easy to handle, simple to store, transport and banish dishwashing chores.

WHY GROW OLD? By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

In Warm Weather, More. Personal Care Essential

The time of year is here when even more care is essential if we are to remain appealing. Perspiration is a trial, but without it we would be in a bad condition indeed!

There are two kinds of sweat glands, the more numerous are called the ecrine glands and are Josephine widely distributed over the entire surface of the body. The evaporation of perspiration cools the skin and the blood in the little blood vessels. The blood flows back and cools other, portions of the body.

The apocrine sweat glands are located only in certain areas of the body, the one we are most, concerned with being the unider arm area. The sweat glands have another important function, that of ridding the

The Summit Lake project is There has been no official The Pacific Great Eastern Railway is spending $2 million on further construction this year under a government backed loan.

A guarantee for the loan was approved by an order in council Tuesday following an earlier cabinet meeting.

There are two big projects open to the PGE at the moment.

SPUE LINE

The Summit Lake project is considered a near-certainty move yet on the PNR since Premier Bennett announced last week it would be developed by five equal sharing partners.

The next move is for the principals to get a certificate of incorporation under the sides providing transport for other natural resources developed there. The Hudson Hope area is fairly rich in coal deposits.

One possibility is construc-tion of a spur line from Fort St. John to the site of the projected Peace River power dam at Hudson Hope.

Considered another strong possibility is construction of possibility is construction of a divisional point at Summit Lake where the PGE is to join the Wenner-Gren inter-ests' Pacific Northern Railway, which will run 700 miles to the Yukon border.

The loan guarantee is for short-term notes totaling $2 million which would mature March 31, 1961, and would bear a maximum interest rate of 6 per cent.

So far the PGE has used $111 million of the $140 million borrowing power granted by the province.

Forgery 'Business' Revealed

A forgery "business" in which printed cheque blanks are sold to cheque artists was revealed in city police court Tuesday when a Victoria man was sentenced to B.C. Poulton was sentenced to B.C. Peniten tiary for the second time in a Barry I. Keele, 29, of 916 Tolmie, and James Schultz, 21, Craigflower P.O., were sentenced by Magistrate William Ostler for uttering forged cheques for $50 on three occa-sions in the city, two in Esquimalt and one in Saanich on May 11.

Both already were under sentence from Duncan RCMP court for attempting to deal in a forgery. JUST OUT

Keele, who had only recently completed a three-year sen-tence for breaking and enter-ing with intent to steal, was given two years at Duncan.

Schultz, with no previous record, was given six months definite and six months indeterminate at young offender's unit at Oakalla Prison.

Mr. Ostler made Tuesday's sentences concurrent on each sentences, but dating from Keele was given two years and six months and Schultz nine months definite and six months indeterminate. The court ordered restitution of $135 in connection with the city charges, the money to come from $410.42 found in possession of the accused when they were arrested.

The two cashed nine $50 cheques in Greater Victoria, police were told. Each was the same, made out on a Vancouver bank in the name of Mari time Towing Co., Vancouver.

Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady said the blanks were prepared by a rubber stamp or printing method, enhanced by a cheque writing machine and they were "purchased from their authors" in Vancouver for a small to cost CHEK-TV in the neighborhood of $300,000. * * *

TO DAVID ARMSTRONG, CHEK-TV president, and his partner William Rea, however, the invest-ment must look like a sound one. With the station's ability to reach into the major markets there is no reason not to expect a sharp increase in advertising revenue, especially from Canadian business firms who have been buying time on U.S. outlets as there were no independent Canadian stations in a position to do the necessary job for them.

Even CHEK's most loyal supporters cannot deny that the move to Saturna will be a popular one with thousands of Victoria viewers whose Channel 5 signal has been dented severely over the years by the Saanich transmissions. According to technicians that I have spoken to the move will end this interference. What's more the new high-power signal is not expected to interfere with any stations now being received by Greater Victoria viewers.

Then, of course, there will be those viewers, who aren't receiving CHEK's signal at the present and who should when the location is changed and the full-power boost has been made.

If all this is true then the move to Saturna should mean nothing but good for CHEK TV, for the viewers at large, for the advertisers and for, in the end, Victoria herself.

new wonder-food from the makers of Milk-Bone

Yes, dogs, it's happened! For years you've gnawed happily on Milk-Bone, sending your pet human to the store for carton after carton of this toothsome biscuit. Now your loyalty is rewarded! Now you can send your human to the store for two (2) delightful Nabisco products for dogs. What, you excitedly bark, is the name of Nabisco's new treat? It's called a word which we fondly hope will be your immediate command to your pet human when you finish reading this ad.

MOISTENED

Add water, milk, gravy or vegetable juices, and Fetch becomes a meal to make your senses reel with delight.

Valuable Side Benefits

As an intelligent dog, you hold a tight grip on your household. Your pet humans know that they're there to see that you're fed well, walked at regular intervals, and that your health and comfort are catered to in every way. Occasionally, however, even the most personable dog loses his hold temporarily.

This cannot happen to the dog whose main diet is Fetch.

Fetch delivers the scientifically balanced proportions of calcium, phosphorous, iron and other nutrients needed to keep you in the pink. On a Fetch diet your eyes will glow more brightly, your cost will shine like mink, and you'll have far more energy for "fetch the stick," "roll-over," "dead doggie," and the other silly games that seem to amuse humans so. In short, a diet of Fetch ensures your charm. Your humans will be in the palm of your paw, and they'll see that your life is a

HOW TO GET YOUR HUMAN TO BUY YOU FETCH

Par be it from us to instruct experts like you on how to get your own way. But those who might be less experienced than some should be informed that there are many good ways of making your human realize you want something. One is to jump playfully into his lap when he least expects it. This is especially effective if you weigh more than fifty pounds. Another way is to draw his attention to our money-back guarantee. Yes, should you not be as wildly delighted over Fetch as we suggest you will be, your human has but to return the box top, and his purchase money will be promptly refunded.

ONCE YOUR HUMAN STARTS BUY-ING YOU FETCH, DON'T LET HIM STOP

You can ensure this by wagging your tail as you eat Fetch, and by running through all your other cute little routines as it gets toward mealtime.

A 13-year-old boy's vision of an English-style entertainment pier over the Dallas Road breakwater has won for him top prize in the Tourist Appreciation Week junior high school essay contest. The pier, modeled on those at Blackpool and Brighton, would extend Victoria's tourist industry as a permanent attrac-tion. It would also serve the dual purpose of covering and making useful an unsightly area wrote Gordon Osland, 13, of 2758 Telegraph Road.

A grade eight student at Mt. Newton Jr. Sr. High School, atructed, concise, progressive and a worthy winner of the $35 first prize, said contest judge Professor Tony Emery. Prizes will be presented at the conclusion of Tourist Appreciation Week May 23-28.

Second prize was won by Ian P. Ladell, 13, a classmate of the winner. Third prize went to D. Rhys Phillips, 13, a grade seven student at Mt. Newton.

Honorable mention was won.

'CAT WAS CAUGHT IN PIGEON LOFT'

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev said today he knew about U-2 intelligence flights when he met President Eisenhower at Camp David last

Asked at a press conference, why he did not mention this at the time, Khrushchev replied:
"When we were talking in Camp David with President Eisenhower I almost opened my mouth to make that statement.

"I was on the point of making it because the atmosphere was most convivial with Eisenhower telling me to call him my friend.

"And then I thought why not raise the matter with this friend of mine. Then I became apprehensive and I thought there was something fishy and I did not raise the matter.

"Then we caught them and I was right. When we caught the cat in the pigeons' loft we hit it on the tail because that was the only way it could be taught some sense."

Security Council May Meet Soon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -Diplomatic sources said Tuesday that with failure of the summit conference they expect both the United States and the Soviet Union to seek emergency sessions of the United Nations Security Council.

The result would be the transfer of the bitter U.S. Soviet clash over the spy plane incident from Paris to the UN. Some diplomats said the council might be called into session by the end of the week.

Lodge Ready to Act Quickly

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was understood to be prepared to act quickly if Washington gives the go-ahead to bring President Eisenhower's proposal for aerial inspection under UN supervision before the United Nations. Eisenhower said in Paris he would seek UN action if the summit meeting failed to take any steps on his plan.

The Soviet Union also was reported ready to bring in charges of aggression against the United States in connection with the plane incident.

Ike Accused

But they think it likely that he also will sound the call for all countries which fought Nazi Germany to meet on a certain date to work out a peace treaty for both West and East Germany. Has Carolyn A Hard-Boiled Egg?

. Has the experiment of a young schoolgirl to hatch a pheasant's egg by artificial means falled?

"I'm beginning to wonder," said Carolyn Brown, 3405 Beach Drive, who is trying to hatch a lone pheasant egg in a small two-egg incubator.

She reported today there is no sign of a chick after 23 days of incubation, the average time it takes for an egg

But Carolyn won't admit defeat yet. She's still hopeful she will get a baby pheasant.

"I'm beginning to be suspicious," she said. "I may have a hard-boiled egg."

She said some people have told her that pheasants' eggs sometimes take 25 days to hatch. This gives her two more days.

Carolyn's egg has aroused the interest of hundreds of school children since she started her experiment in April.

She first "nursed" the egg in a foil-lined box heated by Christmas tree lights. Then she obtained from Seattle a small two-egg chicken incubator—the type used by chil-dren for hatching Easter eggs.

Carolyn inherited the egg from Jack Housez, 4034

He found the egg in the middle of his kitchen Loor, pheasant laid it there after flying through a window

The reason they were steaming bravely down Juan The reason they were steaming bravely down Juan de Fuca Strait was, they were out to meet the governor-general and give him the honor his exalted office merits. But the whole effect of this excellent picture and the excellent manoeuvre being carried out by the excellent ships was spoiled by the stupid oaf who wrote the caption which appeared with the picture.

Because in the caption, the ship carrying the governor-general was referred to twice as HMCS Fraser and THERE THERES A HMCS Crescent.

THREE TIMES as HMCS Crescent.

Now everybody—even an illiterate caption writer—must know the governor-general came from Vancouver to Victoria in HMCS Fraser, not HMCS Crescent.

Furthermore, everybody, including a caption writer with the lowest IQ this side of Lower Slobbovia, should know HMCS Fraser and HMCS Crescent bear little or no resemblance to each other.

And the dumbest of caption writers should remember that HMCS Crescent left this coast long ago, and is that HMCS Crescent left this coast long, long ago, and is now based at Halifax.

Also, no caption writer should try to seize on the feeble excuse that HMCS Crescent once DID transport a governor-general from Vancouver to Victoris.

An excuse as feeble as that just isn't good enough, and if I chance to meet this stupid oaf of a caption writer, I will tell him so, right to his face.

In fact, I think I'll get a mirror and do it now.

Security Council Session Possible By End of Week

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -Diplomatic sources said Tuesday that with failure of the summit conference they expect both the United States and the Soviet Union to seek emergency sessions of the United Nations Security

The result would be the transfer of the bitter U.S.-Soviet clash over the spy plane incident from Paris to the UN. Some diplomats said the council might be called into session by the end of the week,

Lodge Ready to Act Quickly

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was understood to be prepared to act quickly if Washington gives the go-ahead to bring President Elsenhower's proposal for aerial inspection under UN supervision before the United Nations. Elsenhower said in Paris he would seek UN action if the summit meeting failed to take any steps on his plan.

The Soviet Union also was reported ready to bring in charges of aggression against the United States in connection with the plane incident.

SUVA, Fiji Island (UPI)—
Residents reported a "huge ball of fire with an incandescent tail issuing smoke" plunged into the southwest Pacific Ocean about 300 miles southeast of here tonight.

There was no immediate explanation but thousands of persons called newspapers and radio stations to report the incident and inquire if Russia's new space ship had blown up.

The beeps of Sputnik IV were heard in Paris today as the five-ton "rocket ship" passed directly over the French capital, hours after the Suva Monty to See Mgo.

We Are for Itue Disarmament

In another burst of temper, Khrushchev asked: "Would it not be good to take the American aggressors by the scruff of the neck and make them understand they must not commit such acts of aggression."

But he said if Eisenhower resumes nuclear tests, "we shall also do so."

As for the 10-nation disarmament talks, the Soviet premier said: "We are almost convinced that our partners do not want disarmament but Gontinued on Page 2 door could have saved two of three persons killed in a rooming house fire.

The three were asphyxiated and five others injured early Tuesday when a fire that started in a basement raced through the three-storey frame and stucco house on downtown Davie Street.

One of the victims, Gunnar Jannsen, 53, lived in a basement suite. His body was found in the basement about three feet from a door that led to 'safety outside.

Fire wardens said if there had been a door at the head of the basement stairs the fire would likely have been confined long enough to permit the other two victims to escape.
